EDUCATION

The gap between the government and government-aided schools and the private sector school is narrowing down, thanks to the intervention by the governments. Still there exists disparity in the quality of education. The reason includes lack of infrastructure, dropouts due to poverty, unemployment and other social barriers.

The other contributing factors are poverty, unemployment and discrimination based on caste, gender, race, and other social barriers. The education system in underprivileged areas is consistently underfunded.

This leads to a wide range of problems, from increased class sizes and lowered standards to low graduation rates and high failure rates.

CSL has been consistent in its policy that investment in the education sector is paramount. CSL has initiated various programs to address the problems faced by the sector in this region in general and the aspirational district and other backward districts in particular.

Though the primary education sector in Kerala is considered to be very good compared to many other states, may need to be done in regions which are tribal, remote and coastal, in particular.

CONVERSION OF USED COPPER SLAG, A FINAL WASTE BYE-PRODUCT INTO USEFUL PRODUCTS.

Cochin Shipyard uses copper slag for Shot-Blasting of paint and rust from ship body. Shot-Blasting is a process, in which the surface of metal body is sprayed at high blast pressure, with hard particles. After repeated use of this slag, for blasting, the size of the particle reduces to small particle and has to be discarded. High volume of discarded slag poses number of problems like soil degradation as these contain substantial polymer paint particles, rust, dust, etc. Since traces of elements like Lead, Chromium, Arsenic, Antimony, paint particles, etc are present, this used copper slag cannot be used for land-filling. It cannot be left in open due to dust pollution.

Hence, the urgent need to convert this used copper slag to some useful products which are cost effective and economically viable and marketable that will serve the purpose of disposal as well as protect environment

CSL in association with the Makers Village a startup initiative of the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology, Government of India initiated product development with the used copper slag as a startup initiative under its CSR programme.
